MONTPELIER

By a margin of eight pins a Dartmouth college bowling team defeated a local team of candle pin bowlers at the Daley alleys Saturday evening, the Hanover five hitting the pins for a three string total of 1364 to 1336 for the local aggregation. When the visitors arrived at the alleys it was noted that they had but four men and to make the match more interesting Reames who chosen to aid their team. The local bowler did much toward defeating Montpelier by getting a three string total of 290. Kew captured the honors with 293 for a total, but his best mark of 112 for a single string was topped by Murch of the visitors, who rolled 133 in the first game. A return match will be played at Hanover, Jan. 5.

Park Theatre.
A mammoth, elaborate photo-production of Hall Caine's immortal novel and play, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick, produced amid the grandeur and beauty of modern Rome, under the direction of Edwin S. Porter and Hugh Ford. This amazing photo-spectacle marks a new era in dramatic picturization. For the first time in the history of motion pictures the Vatican gardens, the Coliseum, St. Peter's, the castle of St. Angelo's, and many other historic and impressive spots in the Imperial city have been used as settings for a screen production. No summary of bare facts can adequately describe the astounding power and charm of the subject. The pictorial version of Hall Caine's thrilling romance presents the stirring incidents and climaxes, the nobility and tragedy, the elements of love and betrayal and the beautiful ideals and humanities of the original plot, with a wider range, in true colors and with bolder strokes than were possible in the novel or play, and will therefore render the inspiring story its greatest measure of immortality. Can be seen at Park theatre Tuesday, Dec. 7, and adv.

Two solid rubber tire shoes for the rear wheels of the auto fire truck arrived in the city from Boston Sunday morning at 4 o'clock and were immediately adjusted to the wheels. Despite a minor accident which occurred while the truck was proceeding to the Newton street fire Saturday morning the truck was not out of commission at any time during the day. Soon after it had been equipped with new shoes there came a call for a chimney fire on west hill and the truck was soon speeding up Prospect street.

Barre friends of Philip J. Halvosa, a former resident of Barre and now of the Boston American staff, will regret to hear of his serious illness, as announced in the following from the Boston news column in The Editor and Publisher: "Philip J. A barber shop argument this morning between Angus A. Smith and Dr. V. C. Goodrich, which involved several technical questions of an international character culminated in a visit to the law office of S. Hollister Jackson, where the attorney was delegated with the powers of a referee. On the contention that British-born American citizens, should they find their way back to British soil, are not liable to military service under the flag of Great Britain, Dr. Goodrich was declared the winner and upon Mr. Smith devolved the pleasant duty of making a small force of barbers and supernumeraries happy for the rest of the day with a handful of Massachusetts.

A chimney fire at the Bassett farm on west hill, owned by Mail Carrier Dean Bassett, was discovered at noon Sunday and a telephone call to the fire station brought the auto truck and regulars up Prospect street to the scene of the outbreak. It was one of the most stubborn fires of its kind that the department has coped with in some time. Smoke filled every room in the house and people who passed the premises were led to believe that the house was ablaze. Prompt work on the part of the firemen confined the fire to the chimney, although several times that conductor of smoke and heat became so hot that partition plates were imminent. All told the regulars spent the better part of two hours on the hill and a man was left at the house to guard against a further outbreak. Apart from minor damage done by smoke the loss was trivial.

A short musical program will be rendered after the business meeting and refreshments will be served. Sec. F. E. Austin states that plans are being made for the accommodation of 100 members at the business meeting. It is expected that a ceremonial, the first of the new year, will be held on the evening of Feb. 22.
